Market Research Reports

Assess your export opportunities easily and thoroughly with International Market Research Reports from the U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service.

Obtaining up-to-date information on markets located halfway around the world used to be a time consuming, frustrating task. But, with International Market Research Reports, you can benefit from detailed research and on-site interviews conducted by experienced overseas research analysts under the guidance of the U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service.

These comprehensive reports cover single industries in selected countries or regions. They provide market access and trade barrier information, analyze market size and trends, forecast demand, and list market share figures, imports from the United States, best selling products, and end-users. Each report also gives key buyers, potential agents, trade associations, and local publications suitable for advertising.

Price

International Market Research Reports cost from $50 to $250 and are available on a variety of industries. A catalog listing prices, industry titles, and countries is available from the nearest U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service District Office or through the attached reply card.

Additional market research

Other market research available from the U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service includes:

- Country Market Surveys: Summarizing International Market Research Reports on a specific country, these 10 to 15 page surveys detail market size and trends and prospects for U.S. exports. Each survey costs $10.
- Annual Worldwide Industry Review: This yearly, multicountry survey examines a particular U.S. industry's export prospects in various promising world markets. It combines a worldwide profile of U.S. export trends for the industry, country-by-country market assessments for the industry as reported annually by U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service officers overseas, and statistical tables that show U.S. exports by product to each country over the latest 5 years. A single Review costs $200.
